

Holland House Library, London -- September, 1940

Dear Caroline,
Thanks for talking to me when I called, yesterday. I'm impressed by your fairness, when I pose a problem to you. You're a cool sister.
I started writing this postcard in my seminar at NYU, but stopped once the professor began speaking Topics: the possibility of translation, thunder, mourning. Now I'm just off work - am headed to the store to pick up tortellini to eat with my friend Andrew who has made homemade meatballs. Wine will also be involved. Miss you tons. I hope you're doing well.
Brenna
